Targeted Job Search Action Plan

Next Steps	Date
1. Write or update your resume. Make sure it is top notch and in the proper formats, so that you will feel confident using it. Create a file of model job search correspondence that you can draw from to quickly follow up on every opportunity.
2. Research each company and develop a file with info on each (you will use this info later). Go to their website. Google them. Check Glassdoor.com for company reviews. Eliminate any that you are definitely not interested.
3. For each company left on your list, look for information about the challenges and opportunities they face. How do your skills, past experiences, and past accomplishments align with these? How can you be of value to each company? Keep notes on everything.
4. Connect with each company of interest on LinkedIn, Facebook, and Twitter.
5. Set up Google Alerts for news about each company of interest.
6. Connect with the recommended recruiters and employment agencies on LinkedIn.
7. Connect on LinkedIn with employees in your target companies, especially in your functional area. Your ultimate goal is to connect with people in the positions listed above as "networking contacts to seek." These are likely the hiring managers for the types of positions you are targeting. But all connections are potentially valuable.
8. Connect on LinkedIn with past employees of your target companies. Past employees are great resources for candid inside info about companies.
9. Network, network, network. Ask for advice, insights, and recommendations (AIR). Follow all leads. Network more. Always thank those who help you.
10. Connect on LinkedIn with the internal recruiters and HR managers of the companies you are targeting. Reach out to them and let them know of your interests
11. Check out the recommended associations. Join those that seem like a good fit and consider getting involved and attending events.
12. Join the recommended LinkedIn and Facebook Groups. Introduce yourself.
13. Network, network, network. Ask for advice, insights, and recommendations (AIR). Follow all leads. Network more. Always thank those who help you.
14. Visit each industry website at least weekly to stay up-to-date on industry happenings. Consider very selective (Do not spam! Be professional and selective.) posting items of interest that you find on these sites to relevant social media groups that you have joined.
15. Set up and attend informational interviews with the hiring managers (or others) in the companies you are targeting.
16. Are there trade shows or other industry events coming up? Try to attend. Get out from behind your computer. Meet people.

17. Network, network, network. Ask for advice, insights, and recommendations (AIR). Follow all leads. Network more. Always thank those who help you.
18. Avoid sending your resume to HR. When possible, use your network contacts to get a personal introduction to the hiring manager for each opportunity and reach out to them.
19. Rinse and repeat. The companies identified in this report are not the ONLY employers out there. Follow up on all leads and start over whenever you learn of a new company of interest. As you conduct your search, keep records of everything.
20. Follow the above steps and before you know it, you will have landed a perfect new job without ever even looking at the job listings. But to be comprehensive and conduct a truly thorough search, now might be a good time to check the job boards.
